

Metabolon will leverage HELIOS data to identify biomarkers to support the prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of a wide range of health conditions, such as heart disease, diabetes, cancer, and other chronic diseases. The collaborative data agreement and long-term follow-up of cohort participants will enable the investigation of the complex relationship between environment, lifestyle, and genetic factors that may lead to subsequent disease.